

FADE IN:

INT. LIVING ROOM - DAY

WE OPEN on the distressed face of BETTY (18, brown curls, intellectually disabled, sparkling red dress).

She clutches her stomach, in pain.

She gasps.

The figure returns. Pulls the blades out, a rainbow arrangement of balloons follows.

Betty smiles.

CLAPPING OFF SCREEN. On the reverse, WE SEE:

A CROWD of 9 college-aged kids in a rustic living room watching the show. Bright sunlight filters through improvised curtains (bed sheets, oversized jerseys, etc), to accommodate LOUDINI, a party magician, and Betty, his assistant.

They take a bow on their little makeshift stage. Clapping.

LOUDINI

Please give it up for my wonderful assistant Betty.

The audience CLAPS more. WE LAND on NEAL (22, preppy shirt, corduroys, affable), and NEVE (22, mousy, cute, conservative dress).

NEVE

This is so cool, Neal. I love magic.

NEAL

I'm happy it puts a smile on your face. Full disclosure, I asked my uncle to perform today because I knew you liked magic. And I would do anything to make you smile, Neve.

NEVE

Aww, you are the sweetest friend on earth.
